Thirteen projects designed to reinvent the Seine were unveiled on Wednesday, as part of a major architectural competition. The Seine inspired many architects, and it is indivisible from the image of the Parisian postcard, Twenty innovative proposals distributed between Paris, Rouen and Le Havre were selected as winners of the call for projects to reinvent the Seine. In Ile-de-France, thirteen of these projects have been unveiled, each aiming to redesign sites along the Seine while enhancing the river. Among these ideas on which planted architects and real estate promoters some promise indeed to change the face of the banks of the Seine. This is the case, for example, of Place Mazas, in the 12th arrondissement for a project called "L'Atelier de l'Arsenal". In this arm of water between the Seine and the Arsenal basin, the promoter REI Development Real Estate intends to create "a place for all, thought by all". Coworking spaces and theater have been designed to fit into the arches that line the bridge of Austerlitz while temporary installations take place directly on the water. The visual of the project thus presents a long pool installed on the edge of the quay.

A BREWERY IN THE SEINE RIVER UNDER THE PONT ALEXANDRE III-----

A few steps away and at the Place du Showcase, famous club installed under the Pont Alexandre III and definitively closed in February, an "electro cabaret" will be created by integrating a mix of activities: music, dance, theater, light sculpture.

Among the other projects selected as winners, one can also note the creation of an artisan brewery at the Briche stable in Saint-Denis. Beer production and a bar would take place in the waterfront building, which was used to distribute the beer produced at the nearby bars by barge. The timetable for the implementation of these projects is yet to be clarified. "In the coming weeks and months, the winning teams will have to confirm their offer, to establish the necessary actions to make the land available," said the Paris City Hall. All the selected projects are to be discovered at the Pavillon de l'Arsenal. Source Carole Blanchard and City of Hall
